

To the Rabbits,

Why did you come here and take over?

Why have you scared away all our friends and slaughtered our family? How can we live with you drawing the life from this wretched land? You have taken our food and our children so forcefully, you have built machines to destroy all that we love and you have waged countless wars against our people and won.

Ever since the first time we saw the columns of smoke coming from your cursed inventions, we knew that you would bring utter destruction. Ever since we first saw the masts of your ships, we knew that you would become the dictators. And ever since the first time we saw your guns, we knew you would start this war that has caused the downfall of our race. Alas, this is the end of our dynasty and the beginning of yours. All I see is a lifeless, dystopian landscape ahead of me. What drove you to commit such treachery, and what makes you think that replacing nature with industry is a good deed? I hope that one day you realise that you have destroyed an entire civilisation.

Farewell.

Yours truly, The Chief of the Numbats

Translated to English from traditional Numbat language by 'Sad Frog' (Year 5)